What have I / we done?

We created a board named "Every Scrum Project" on Trello application. Later, team members were invited to the board. Everyone created a user story regarding our topic.

I created a story as "As a user, I want to be able to edit the task from the personal to do list so that I can upgrade my work later". Then team leader allotted specific task for each one of us. I was allotted to do the start side front-end. Then we created the ground project using spring initializer, uploaded it in GitHub and cloned our project in IntelliJ.

What should I / we do next time?

In future we must do our allotted task under different branches in GitHub desktop and later it is planned to merge.

What potential upcoming obstacles do I see?

When I completed my task and tried to commit it in GitHub, I committed many wrong files. I was confused about which one I should commit to and which one I should not.

What have I / we done?

After I created the codes for the front-end of the start page, it was corrected and tested by the team leader. Likewise, the team leader checked the other member's task and tested it.

What should I / we do next time?

As we just created the basic ground project, we planned to work more on it to get a perfect output for our project. Again, we are allotted different tasks to update our project.

What potential upcoming obstacles do I see?

I felt difficult is that, as each one of us doing small part of the same project it was confusing for me regarding what is happening in the project. I felt like that because it is a new concept.

What have I / we done?

I was again allotted with adding stylings and information to the home page and checklist pages. Every time, we did changes in our project it was committed in GitHub and was also updated in Trello.

What should I / we do next time?

I was asked to complete the task before Friday so that we could commit every change and make the project run properly.

What potential upcoming obstacles do I see?

I felt the time given was too short for doing this type of project.

What have I / we done?

I was creating my html and css file for home page and checklist page and making it working with the project.

What should I / we do next time?

After I completed my part, I was waiting to commit the changes with the help of team leader on the next day.

What potential upcoming obstacles do I see?

In the beginning I made mistakes in committing in GitHub desktop, I was nervous in doing in that again as I do not want to mess it.

What have I / we done?

The project leader merged all our tasks together and made it work perfectly. We then cloned the main branch and ran the project . It was successfully working.

What should I / we do next time?

After the project work was successful, we were asked to document our project details and our work in logbook and submit it in Learn point.

What potential upcoming obstacles do I see?

I felt the presence of the team members was not regular, which leads to some confusions in the project.
